

NOT ALL HEROES WEAR CAPES!

Are you a lucky kid? Are you as lucky as me?☺.....

Hi! I'm Maria. I have an incredible cousin called Rosy. But Rosy isn't any ordinary cousin that any old folk would have. Rosy is my hero.

Rosy is always there for me and never lets anything get in our way. She is ever so pretty. Rosy has super long nails (and they're not even fake)! Rosy has incredibly long fair hair and wears beautiful alluring outfits that match perfectly with her makeup.

Her shoes... ok I think I got a bit carried away with the look, but hey, lets quit talking about this nonsense! Have I even told you half of Rosy's personality yet? There's much more to Rosy than meets the eye.

Rosy visits me every weekend. I absolutely love this because I always got homework on Fridays and Rosy can come my house and do it for me. I needn't worry at all if I hadn't done my homework because when Rosy came and my mom started telling me off for not doing my homework, Rosy was ready to tell my mom an excuse, like always, until my mom has no other choice but to give up and believe everything Rosy tells her.

Now, obviously after this I didn't actually do the homework myself. I bet you've already guessed this... yes, I let Rosy do it for me. Not that I couldn't do it myself, it was pretty easy in fact. It was just that I had other things to do... better things that are actually interesting.

But it was that day in school Rosy really saved me. I had been given plenty of time to complete my BORING HOMEWORK but was unable to finish it! No, don't ask...

It was on a school day so there was no way Rosy could have possibly done my homework that time. I kind of thought it would be ok if I left it and miss would just forget but no, I was wrong.

As soon as I came into the classroom... guess what! Miss asked me where my homework was. I WAS DOOMED THIS TIME! There was no way I would get away with it this time (like I ever got away with anything)! I "fake" coughed.

How would I ever be able to think of an excuse this time? What was I going to do? I didn't need To do anything though, not when rosy saved me!

Rosy was a member of staff at our school, she worked in my class on Wednesdays.

ROSY: Miss, Maria came my house yesterday and did the homework there!

(Teacher raises her eyebrows)

MISS: Oh really? Great! Well, where is it then Maria?

(I gulped☺)

ME: Erm...

(Rosy interrupts me)

ROSY: Miss, Maria forgot it at my house... but that's fine because I happened to find it on my bed and put it in my bag.

ME: Oh yes miss! I tried so hard just for you especially (teacher looks at Maria unconvinced)

MISS: Thank you Maria! Well Rosy, I think you should make a start on getting the homework.

ROSY: of course!

And that was how Rosy became my official HERO!! YET
SHE DOESN'T EVEN WEAR A CAPE!

Maria Nazad (y6)